Snow Globe gives a penthouse an elegant makeover with metallic accents and a cosy mix of textures

It's no easy task to furnish a home; it takes time, dedication and a knack for detail to find the right pieces for your abode. And for one Singaporean couple, this normally enjoyable process was made more challenging due to the Covid-19 restrictions during the circuit breaker period in May 2020. They needed to quickly find a way to elegantly furnish the empty penthouse in three months.

So it was with much relief when the clients became acquainted with local retailer Snow Globe, which made their decoration journey so much easier. "Where most other retailers focus on just the products, we provide a full solution for the client," says Juliana Boh, founder of Snow Globe. "We want to understand the client's needs and lifestyle, and offer a home that suits their requirements."

Although the clients could not visit the showroom, Snow Globe shared frequent messages and phone calls to ensure that the pieces were made to the specifications required. The clients love metallic accents, but wanted to avoid using gold finishes. "For any furniture that had metallic parts, we did them in a chrome silver or gunmetal finish. We used materials such as leather, wood and marble to play up the textures in the space and make it look sleek yet cosy," explains Boh.

The final look is so picture-perfect that the clients have become regular customers; they've also enlisted Snow Globe to furnish their office and their new home. "We are very blessed that our clients had complete trust in us. They loved how everything was put together exactly like how they had pictured it," shares Boh with pride.
