S Aesthetics debuts a brand-new interior, complemented with a beautiful set of furnishings from Snow Globe

One successful collaboration often leads to another—that was the case with Snow Globe, a local furniture purveyor which was enlisted by its satisfied clients to provide furnishings for an aesthetics clinic. The Snow Globe team had initially styled and furnished the home of the owners, who soon became repeat customers with this new project.

Snow Globe was tasked to pick out furnishings to match the new look of S Aesthetics. The clinic had recently moved to a larger and more central location, and wanted a modern and edgy interior to suit its new branding.

Based on the spatial design of the newly renovated clinic, Snow Globe founder Juliana Boh recommended a number of furnishings she deemed would be a good fit. “The furniture we selected suits the loft-like interior style. As there’s a lot of metal used on the facade, we chose materials such as leather, and also warm colours to make the experience a bit cosier,” she explains.

Although it was the first time the team were working with an aesthetics clinic, they took on the challenge with much enthusiasm, while carefully considering the unique needs of the project. “We learn new things in every project we undertake; in this case, we had to procure furniture suitable for commercial use, and not the usual residential furniture we typically work with,” says Boh.

For the waiting room, Boh selected faux-leather armchairs in camel brown. These are paired with blue side tables to inject a pop of colour into the space; the blue hue also offers a nod to the clinic’s signature colour. In the consulting rooms, leather task chairs provide comfort and support for the doctors; qualities much needed during the long hours of patient care. The walls were also dressed with art pieces selected by Snow Globe, depicting strong feminine figures.

The process went smoothly for the team, as the clients “knew exactly what they wanted, made decisions quickly and cleared paths for us when required,” says Boh. The results speak for themselves. “The owners were very pleased with how the furniture and loose decor pieces really brought the concept to life,” adds Boh with much pride.
